INTEGRATED GUARDING

Comprehensive HOA security solutions, saving both time and money

Integrated Guarding combines Securitas Guarding Services — On-site, Remote, and Mobile to provide a comprehensive, cost-saving program. After a security risk assessment (SRA) has been performed, custom-tailored alternatives will be selected to cover your unique HOA needs.

For example:

- A large gated community may need on-site guards to handle the main gate while the perimeter is monitored by remote guarding.
- A retail environment may have multiple security officers during business hours but use only remote guarding overnight.
- New home builders may need a different combination of services each week.

On-site Guarding

Securitas officers perform those vital functions that rely on friendly, consistent human interaction with a wealth of resources to cover core duties in efficient ways, whether you need one guard at an entry gate, or a team of officers to monitor an entire community. As a client-focused organization, Securitas devotes extensive time and resources to hiring, training, developing and retaining our officers to achieve a level of service that meets the client's security needs.

Mobile Guarding

Typically, a Mobile officer will check in on key locations a predetermined number of times, at random intervals and always be in the vicinity to respond at a moment's notice.

Mobile Guarding allows budget-conscious clients to fully leverage Securitas' resources and industry knowledge. Mobile clients have access to the same professional officers, cutting edge technology and dedicated customer service they've come to expect, while only having to pay for the services they actually utilize.

Remote Guarding

Where officers once occupied control booths ten feet from an access point, we can now monitor remotely. This is already standard practice for many HOA and gated communities; multiple neighborhoods in Orange County can be monitored by highly-trained officers at the community headquarters, who can dispatch local responders with the touch of a button.

Tried and tested technology means an off-site officer can do a full video-tour of a community, make security announcements and manage gate-access for neighbors and visitors.
